Score With Henry's Hand Of God In A Brand New Viral Game

Screenshots of the game are available on request

The leading UK based games design and development company in the UK, T-Enterprise, is pleased to announce the release of yet another brand new viral FAB game for individuals to play for free. Having released numerous free viral games in recent months, millions of people around the world are now aware of the Glasgow-based company and look forward to playing every game made available. Each game focuses on a hot topical issue in the news and this week's game is no different. Following the World Cup 2010 qualifiers that took place this week, there was only one hot story – Thierry Henry's hand of God. Irish eyes were not smiling as William Gallas turned the ball into the net to put France through in extra time, but it was Henry's blatant handball just prior to the goal that caused international outrage. In this game, you get a chance to practice your handball action as a result.

Hand Of Henry features Thierry Henry waiting for the ball to be crossed in the 6 yard box, which is where the handball occurred in the World Cup qualifier game against Ireland. As the cross comes in, it is your responsibility to time his movement just right so that he can score with his hand.

This is the latest in a long line of free viral games released by T-Enterprise and can be found at http://www.t-enterprise.co.uk/flashgame/playgame_new.aspx?id=ThierryHenri.

Sadia Chishti, T-Enterprise's Managing Director, watched the game and felt that it would make the perfect topic for a viral game for football fans.

"I watched the game at home on Wednesday and had difficulty believing that Thierry Henry could be such a cheat! I was baffled as to how the referee didn't see the handball but then to have Henry come out and admit the handball made it even worse. I felt so sorry for the Irish because they didn't deserve that.

"After Platini and his FIFA cronies have repeatedly condemned the cheats that dive, what are they going to do about Henry? Probably nothing because he got the country to the World Cup, but we decided to let people all over the world get their own back with a little online ridicule!"

Created within 24 hours of the game itself, the viral is now online and available to play for free. Simply use the up arrow to move Henry's arm up at the best possible time to score a goal and build your points total. The aim is to score as many goals with your hand as possible. The more goals you score, the more points you accumulate and the higher up the scoreboard you will be!

T-Enterprise employs six people and works with businesses in a range of industries across the UK.

The company sends out free topical viral games every week, based on events in the news.

One of the last viral games featured Rupert Murdoch attempting to brainwash the world in an attempt to get the Conservatives into government following The Sun's defection from Labour.
