

PRESS RELEASE

Date: For Immediate Release

Protect Obama From Paper Aeroplanes In Brand New Viral Game

Screenshots of the game are available on request

T-Enterprise, the top games design and development company in the UK, has recently become renowned as a direct result of the release of a series of free FAB games. These viral games have attracted players from all over the world as a result of their topical focus and this week's will be no different. Based on the recent speech that US President Barack Obama made to school children and drawing on the heckling that he got from Republicans during a speech about the US health care system, it is definitely referring to the newsworthy topic of the week.

Obama's School Camp features Barack Obama, complete with the speech he made to school children urging them to work hard playing in the background. Far from being able to make his speech in peace, paper aeroplanes are being thrown directly at him. As his bodyguard, you must protect him from these paper threats to national security and bring down all flying objects before they reach him. Only by keeping the planes at bay can you do your job and win the game.

This is the latest in a long line of free viral games released by T-Enterprise and can be found at <http://www.t-enterprise.co.uk/obamaschool>.

Sadia Chishti, T-Enterprise's Managing Director, found the speech fascinating but could not help thinking about what hassle he would get had the audience been Republicans instead of children.

"After reading the news about Barack Obama's speeches this week, I'm amazed that such a powerful man can be so grounded and display such values. I, like everyone else, hope that he succeeds in his bid to reform social values but I could not help but think what would have happened if Republicans were in the audience for his first speech instead of children!

"After calling him a liar and heckling him through his healthcare speech, the Republicans proved that children have more manners than they do so we decided to combine the two in one game."

Created within 24 hours in response to recent events, the game is now online and completely free to play. All you have to do is watch the screen for the planes and respond quickly. All of the planes will be marked with a letter, which you then have to type in before the paper plane hits Obama. You get just five lives so if you type the wrong letter or are not quick enough to stop the plane before it reaches him then you lose a life. Five mistakes and it is game over.

T-Enterprise employs six people and works with businesses in a range of industries across the UK.

The company sends out free topical viral games every week, based on events in the news.

Last week's game featured Silvio Berlusconi trying to burn all of the copies of his estranged wife's tell all book before anyone got the chance to read it.

You can sign up to receive news and links to the latest free game releases at www.t-enterprise.co.uk/corporate-technology/fabnewsletter.aspx.

ENDS

NOTES TO EDITORS

- For any further information, please contact Zarrar Chishti on 0141 771 9888 or email zarrar@t-enterprise.co.uk
- A company fact file and images are available at www.t-enterprise.co.uk/press
- Screen shots are available