Help Gordon Brown recover 3,000 stolen passports in new free game

Gordon Brown has personally taken charge of recovering the 3,000 stolen passports in a new free online game – and you can help him hunt round the streets of Oldham to find them.

“Gordon Brown and the Raiders of the Lost Passports” has been put together as a fun piece of social comment by high profile Scottish games development firm T-Enterprise.

You can play it free online at www.t-enterprise.co.uk/rolp.

It's in response to the theft of 3,000 blank passports from a van in the Greater Manchester town on Monday.

The game places the player as PM Gordon Brown, driving a fast car around the town to pick up passports.

You have to collect as many as you can in 60 seconds. The current record is 20.

T-Enterprise's MD Sadia Chishti said: “Sometimes when there's a problem you can't trust anyone else to fix it. That's what we've imagined Gordon Brown is doing in our latest game.

“He's finished his holiday early, got himself a fast car and he's personally driving around Oldham picking up the passports.”

T-Enterprise is a games development business based in Glasgow. It employs six people and works with businesses across the UK.

Recently it captured national headlines with the launch of a game where players help a Heather Mills character collect her £24m divorce settlement by throwing water around a courtroom.

Other recent games include gentle ribbing of British Airways for the Heathrow terminal five PR disaster.
